

Katie's Trust

It was bedtime and Mother had just turned the light off. Now Katie was afraid of the dark. But then she saw the bright moon outside her window and asked: "Is the moon God's light?" "Yes, Katie," Mother replied. "The moon is God's light." "Are the stars God's lights, too?" asked Katie. "Yes," answered Mother, "the stars are God's lights, too."

Then came the next question from the little girl: "Will God turn off His lights and go to sleep, too?" "No dear," Mother replied. "God never turns off His lights. He always watches over us night or day. And He also gives us His angels to always take care of us." "Well then," said Katie, "since God is always awake and sends His angels, then I'm not going to be afraid anymore."

So remember, if you are ever afraid of the dark, think about how God's angels are protecting you. Remember God's lights that never go out. Now you won't have to be afraid either. ❖
